Summary
[F419] Anxiety disorder, unspecified
Problem Anxiety
Behavior Autonomic hyperactivity including dry mouth, nausea, diarrhea, shortness of breath, or rapid heartbeat.
Goals Caregivers reinforce all steps toward anxiety reduction.
Objective Attend a support group for individuals with developmental disabilities.
Arrange for a psychiatric evaluation to determine whether psychotropic medications may be helpful.
Arrange for psychological assessment of the client's anxiety symptoms, including developmental history, family history, and previous psychiatric involvement.
Arrange for the client to participate in group therapy to learn skills incompatible with his/her anxiety symptomatology (e.g., relaxation, visualization, and deep breathing).
Arrange for the client to receive individual therapy using a therapeutic model best suited for him/her (e.g., cognitive-behavioral, behavioral, or psychoeducational) to facilitate changes in anxious feeling and thinking.
Assess ecological factors contributing to the maintenance of the client's anxiety behaviors.
Assist family members and caregivers in identifying what the client may be communicating through his/her problematic behavior (e.g., fear, helplessness, or frustration). Refer family members and caregivers to the Parent Survival Manual (Schopler) for examples of effective
