EHR IN PRACTICE

RITTEN

EXTENDED PROFILE

Ritten

OVERVIEW

Ritten is a unified EMR and practice management platform for behavioral health and addiction treatment providers.

The comprehensive treatment center software unifies core functions like medical records, RCM, and CRM while simplifying documentation (specifically clinical charting, appointment scheduling, compliance tracking, and claims billing) to help providers manage patient care and administration in one place.

RITTEN INTELLIGENCE

Ritten integrates artificial intelligence for documentation and workflow assistance, including tools that convert voice or shorthand into clinical notes and help standardize documentation processes. Features like a HIPAA-compliant patient portal and referral conversion tools further assist with intake paperwork, client communication, and engagement.

FURTHER INVESTMENT IN AI

In December 2025, Ritten announced a $35 million Series B funding round led by Five Elms Capital, with participation from existing investors such as Threshold Ventures, 8VC, and Bienville Capital. This investment aims to accelerate the vendor’s development of AI-enhanced features and support its expansion in the behavioral health sector.

The client sought therapy following the emotional turmoil of losing a government election, an event she attributes to feelings of betrayal from her running mate and staff. This loss has left her feeling mentally strained, exhibiting strong emotions of anger and disappointment. Recently, she experienced a small stroke, which she found surprising, and describes her overall physical health as good despite this incident. The client reports a healthy diet managed by a chef and denies any substance abuse, although she does take Xanax and occasional sleeping pills, the prescription status of which remains unclear.
During the assessment, Selina expressed significant frustration with her political career, feeling unsupported in her ambitions and grappling with a history of emotional and verbal abuse that has contributed to her sense of failure. She has no prior history of psychiatric treatment or substance abuse issues but acknowledges feelings of worthlessness stemming from her recent experiences. While she demonstrates limited insight into her situation and is not currently motivated to change her medication use, Selina is open to discussing her feelings and experiences in therapy. Her past roles as

Data
John expressed experiencing issues with his partner, particularly focusing on a recent conflict. He reported feeling attacked and responded defensively, resulting in both shouting and interrupting each other. The conflict lasted approximately forty minutes. John acknowledged the unproductive nature of the argument and recognized his difficulties in stopping the escalation. There was exploration of automatic thoughts, and John expressed feelings of lacking control over his boundaries.
Assessment
John appears to struggle with expressing and maintaining boundaries in his intimate relationship, which contributes to conflict escalation. He shows insight into the negative patterns of his interactions but finds it challenging to implement effective communication skills during conflicts. The session highlighted an improvement in John's ability to reflect on his communication habits, indicating a small increase in personal agency. He exhibits avoidant tendencies post-conflict, which might perpetuate his
